

Quality - an asset for the future, 2023

On November 9th, 2023, the World Quality Day, the Faculty of Industrial Chemistry and Environmental Engineering (Politehnica University Timisoara) organized the third edition of the symposium entitled Quality - an asset for the future. The event is an opportunity to focus the attention of individuals, teams, non-profit organizations, companies and decision-makers, on the essential aspects aimed at improving the quality of life, services and products.

In the section dedicated to presentations made by teaching staff and students, assoc. prof. Cornelia Muntean presented the results of the NETMIN project in the field of environmental quality assessment and the measures that can be applied to reduce the pollution of mining areas.
